Dedication

Five years ago, Page County High School's first eighth grade class stood at the bottom of "the stairway of progress." Having entered a new phase of their life, they faced the future with anticipation and high aspirations. Determined to become a vital part of Page, they gave of their time and talents to aid their school's growth and progress. Each new year brought more important responsibilities, bigger challenges, and greater achievements as they steadily climbed to a higher position on the stairway. Likewise, they met disappointments and learned to proudly accept defeat, as well as victory.

Today, as seniors, they stand on Page County's top step of progress and the threshold of life. Some will continue to higher learning, many will choose their life's work, and still others will begin a family; but all will face a world where they will no longer follow, but lead.

To you, the first graduating class to spend your entire high school years at Page County, we wish the best. May the things that you have learned here serve you well in the future. We proudly dedicate this book to the SENIOR CLASS OF 1966.

PANTHERS AT WORK!

Mr. Bodkin sparked the drive for our field.

During the first five years of the life of Page County High School, we have used the old athletic field in Shenandoah, but it was never really our field.

And then, during our last football game of the year, trouble erupted. No PCHS player or student was involved; it was all caused by strangers, but just the same our school was placed on probation. One provision of removing that probation was the requirement that we have our own field. We wanted our own field; we deserved our own field, and the pictures on these pages tell how we got it.

WATCH IT GROW!
A huge sign, painted by students, is made ready for the field.

Lights are assembled.

Mrs. Hall's report room, winner of the room contest, waves checks.

Everyone went to work. Report rooms entered a contest to raise money, the students donated their pocket money and visited their neighbors, and school suppliers donated checks. The entire school went to work to help PAW with the new field. And PAW began to get money in the bank to do the needed work.

Yes, the PANTHERS worked. The job was done, and we have our field. Now, the future will tell about the quality of our Panther teams.

The Athletic Field Development Committee was formed of volunteer leading citizens who made plans for raising the needed funds for the new field. Plans also had to be made for construction for the school must have the best possible field, bleachers, and lights.

The word was spread by radio, newspapers, signs, posters, and letters. The Panthers were working!

Stonework is done.

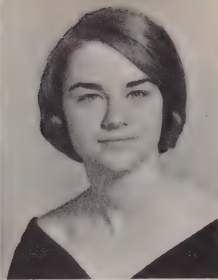

Lights are erected.

When the school building was erected five years ago, the land for the field was graded, but nothing else was done. After grading the ends, the field had to be drained, and lights were erected. Bleachers will be built on the sloping side below the schoolhouse. We await our first football game of the next season for our dedication of the new field.

WELL DONE, PANTHERS.

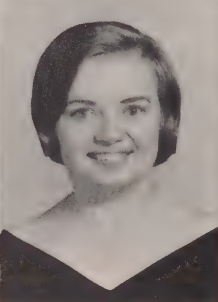

Panther track stars use the new cinder track.

"I presume you're aware that this can be pretty serious, Nelson . . . making plans to inter a man that's been seen alive after you declared him dead."

FINDERS CREEPERS

When Hercules Nelson and Wilbur Maxwell came to spend a weekend with Herc's Uncle Bob and Aunt Mary, they were all set for a big time. Then the boys learned that Uncle Bob was a mortician, and they were ready to go home pronto, especially when they found there was another guest, an old boy named Jason Quigley who "ran out of gas." Mr. Quigley started gallivanting around in a most un-corpus delecti fashion and things happened that would put most brave men to flight.

Mr. Quigley was not really dead, but was trying to find the person who had tried to murder him. No doubt it was a good plan, until Wilbur and Herc took over the case. Matters went from bad to worse to terrible, but with the help of Frankie, Granny, and Daphne, the boys managed to snare the culprit.

This rib-tickling mystery comedy was under the direction of Mrs. Betty Gravett, with Martha Shuler as student director, Peggy Hammer as stage manager, and Pat Kite as prompter.

"Howdy."

"Ah hah . . . front page. Aged Philanthropist dies suddenly."

Titles of Royalty went to Jane Bricker and Eugene Kiblinger.

The Ipanemas provided an excellent selection of dance music.

MOONLIGHT AND ROSES

Rose trellises before a background of rose and white streamers, stars hung in a sky of blue streamers, and a full moon in the starry night beautifully portrayed the theme of the Junior-Senior Prom--"Moonlight and Roses." Mr. Bodkin crowned the prom Queen, Jane Bricker, and she and the King led the dance to the theme song.

Couples floated gracefully around the floor, captivated by the romantic atmosphere and the music of the Ipanemas. As the notes softly died away, Seniors bade farewell to their last prom and Juniors anticipated another in the coming year.

Leading the Grand March were the presidents of the Junior and Senior Class, Ray Allen and Garland Comer, and their dates, Carol Sessoms and Jackie Sullivan.

Students and their guests were served refreshments from beautifully appointed tables.

ENGLISH

English students strive for a mastery of our language. With the emphasis on the perfection of its use, grammar, spelling, and vocabulary are important parts of a student's English training. The library, serving as an invaluable center for research, enables the students to prepare themes, oral reports, and research papers. In order to make classes more interesting and informative, films and records are presented.

Having used Lewis Carroll as the subject of her research paper, Edna Sours points out some interesting facts from one of his famous works.

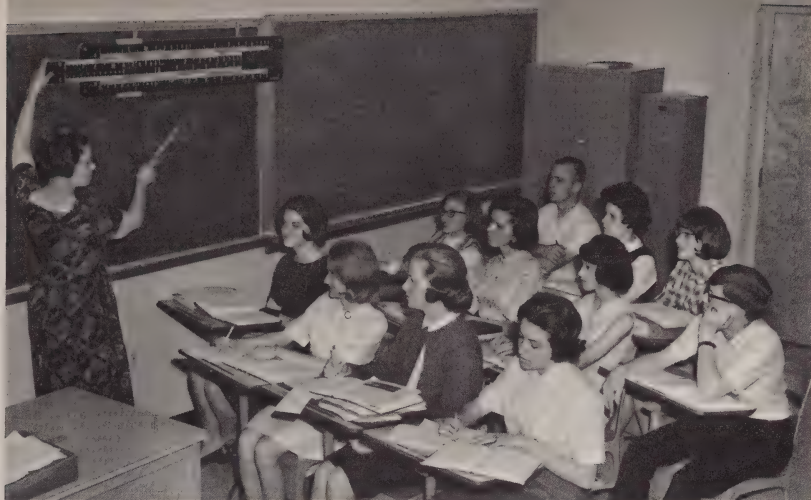

Mrs. Johnson listens intently to a report given by freshman, Christy Wentz.

Students concentrate on various types of literature throughout their successive school years. American and English Literature are the objects of study for juniors and seniors respectively. In addition, oral and written book reports provide an opportunity to discuss literary works and authors. After an author is selected, much time is devoted to the study and analysis of the author and his style of writing. These subjects of literature range from the Bible to the most modern works.

Mrs. Hudson's eighth grade class enjoys a prose selection read by Rosanne Koontz.

In the math analysis class, Mrs. Murphy demonstrates the usefulness of the slide rule in solving a problem.

MATH

The ever-broadening field of mathematics is becoming a vital part of our lives today. If a student is to succeed in college or in later life, he needs the sound background provided by these courses. Included in the math program at PCHS are general math, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and math analysis.

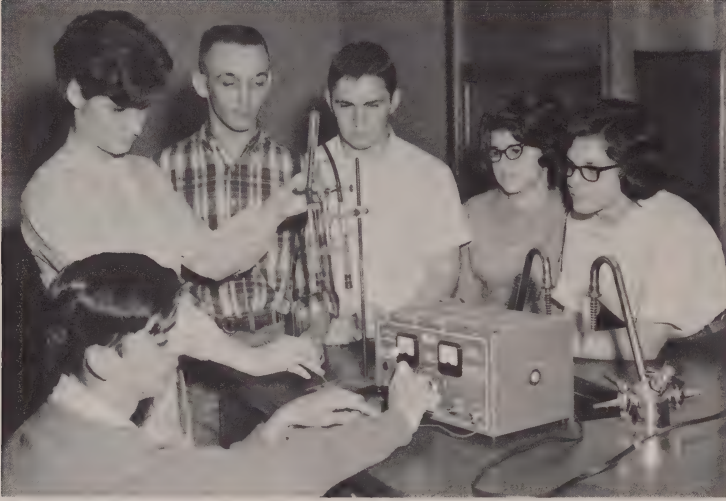

The general math class gets a taste of algebra with the help of Susie Grimsley.

Linda Batman explains to her geometry class how she proved a difficult theorem.

SCIENCE

Kenneth Pence, Janey Cave, Billy Rucker, Delmas Turner, Gloria Stanley, and Toni Rosazza experiment with the electrolysis of water.

Through the ages, man has learned many things about himself and his environment. This knowledge has developed into our fundamental sciences.

Today science is playing an ever increasing role in our world. The earth, sky, and seas still hold secrets unknown to man.

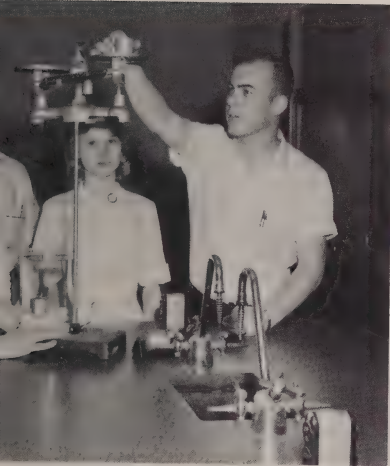

Mr. Dofflemyer's eighth grade science class studies bacteria through a microscope.

Science students view one of the many films presented by the department.

And today's science classes are one step toward a better understanding of these mysteries. Students taking the courses realize that a whole new world can be opened to them through a microscope, telescope, and a test tube.

Students are first introduced into general science or earth science. Biology is usually included in the sophomore's curriculum and this year a more advanced course has been added--BSCS biology. The college bound students and those with a curiosity for science may continue their studies with chemistry or physics.

Physics class finds Billy Fox, Carol Sessoms, Danny Nauman, Patricia Roudabush, and Garland Comer using Archimedes principle to determine specific gravity.

Buddies, Roy Alger and Robert Gray observe together as they collect data for their project.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Dale Painter gives an oral report to the junior history class.

Senior government classes enter into a study of communism, using as a basis J. Edgar Hoover's book, MASTERS OF DECEIT.

Social Studies classes prepare students to accept the responsibilities that they will face as good citizens and future leaders. The curriculum at PCHS consists of courses in world and United States history, world geography, and government. Supplements used by teachers to make a well-rounded course include newspapers and magazines of current events, films, projects, and reports.

History students gain an increased appreciation of our unique heritage.

Students in first-year Spanish work on the exercises at the end of each chapter.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

Spanish and Latin form our foreign language department at Page County High School. Each subject is offered for two years. Through these classes, students gain a knowledge of the basic fundamentals of the language, as well as a better understanding of people in other countries. They realize the effect that these languages have had on the English we speak today.

Latin classes, under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Newton, study contributions of Roman civilization, and Spanish students learn more about their southern Spanish-speaking neighbors.

Latin II students use group discussion as a method of translation.

Office practice students--Dianna Ramey, Connie Sampson, Bonnie Good, Judy Lam, and Doris Kite--gain experience in the use of business machines.

BUSINESS EDUCATION

A lesson in transcribing keeps the shorthand class occupied.

The business courses are an important part of our school's offering, especially for the students who plan to enter the business field. The purpose of the program is to equip them with the training and confidence they will need in their chosen occupation.

In typing classes students learn the basic fundamentals of typing, and put what they have learned into practice to increase speed and accuracy. Shorthand students, while striving for speed in dictation, also increase spelling and vocabulary skills. The office practice course is an invaluable asset in preparing to enter the business world. A schoolroom becomes an office as students learn the correct way to use the telephone, gain increased efficiency in the operation of business machines, and learn the importance of a pleasing personality and good grooming in a business career.

In addition to these classes, bookkeeping, personal use typing and general business are also taught.

3:00 RUSH

Students in the personal use typing class concentrate on a timing.

Volleyball is one of the activities participated in by physical education classes.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Gloria Comer does pull-ups as part of a physical fitness testing program.

Basketball provides an opportunity for students to develop team spirit.

Mrs. Judd's class takes part in basketball relays.

The health and physical education department combines classroom instruction with supervised physical activity. Freshmen students take part in the driver education course. Fun-filled action and strenuous exercise challenge students to develop strong bodies, muscular coordination, and sportsmanship.

The program includes participation in calisthenics, basketball, volleyball, softball, track, and other sports. A physical fitness testing program is entered into in the fall and again in the spring to make a well-rounded program.

Physical education boys demonstrate their skill as they prepare for a rebound.

Susan Kite and Jackie Sullivan practice bobbing.

Mike Harrell pours a mold in metalworking class.

John Laconia, Wayne Cardin, and Tommy Somers build shoe shine boxes as a woodworking project.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Industrial arts classes include courses in woodworking, metalworking, and mechanical drawing. Students in each class work toward increased skill in the use of tools and operation of machines, while striving to get the best possible results with them. Finished projects make the hours of effort and work very worthwhile.

Harrison Cubbage and Lawrence Cubbage watch intently as Donnie Dutrow and Mike Harrell start the task of cooling molds.

Students in industrial arts classes learn to use the tools and machines safely.

Agriculture students identify tools and demonstrate their use.

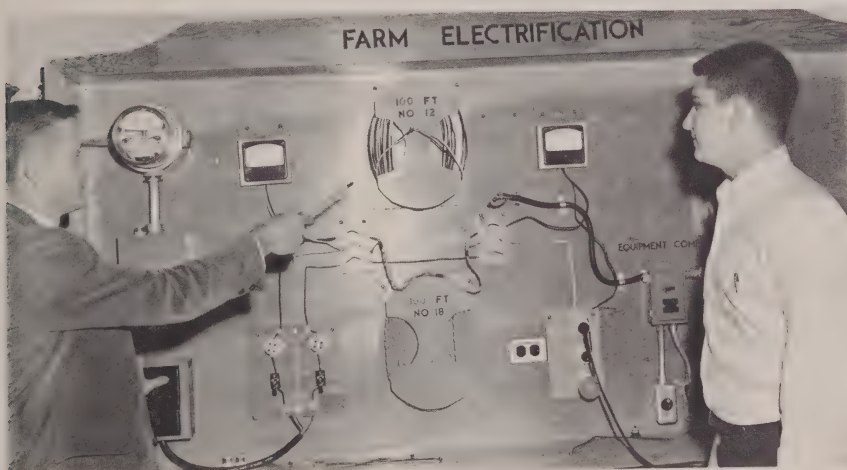

VOCATIONAL AGRICULTURE

Agriculture affords a great future for young people--not only in farming and farm management--but also in business, industry, education, research, conservation, and recreation. Amazing advances in scientific agriculture and the specialization of agricultural occupations make this a great challenge to the youth of today.

Our school's vocational agriculture department offers a wide range of training and instruction in the basic study of agricultural sciences and mechanics, as well as leadership.

Mr. Lam shows Page Blosser how to find the number of amps in an electrical system.

Yildis Pendergast, Susie Good, and Paula Jenkins sand the cornice to be placed over the dining room window.

Pat Roudabush and Diana Ramey give a demonstration to the Home Ec Special Class on the method of french frying chicken.

HOME ECONOMICS

An effort is made by Home Ec classes to prepare girls in the skills they will need as future homemakers. All classes receive a course in sewing, and cooking constitutes a major area covered by the classes. This year a Red Cross home nursing course was added in which the girls learn the correct procedure of caring for a patient. Some classes discuss home furnishings while others take a course in refinishing furniture. Another area that is covered is that of marriage and family relations. All of these combine to give the girls a knowledge necessary to manage successful homes and happy families.

After sewing projects are finished, the girls examine and grade each other's garments.

ART

Working with tempera, water color, sketching, and house planning, PCHS art students have the opportunity to express their creative urges. The members of the art classes have made the carved eagle flagholder and the school seal for the auditorium, the carved figures for the gym, and the huge signs for P.A.W.

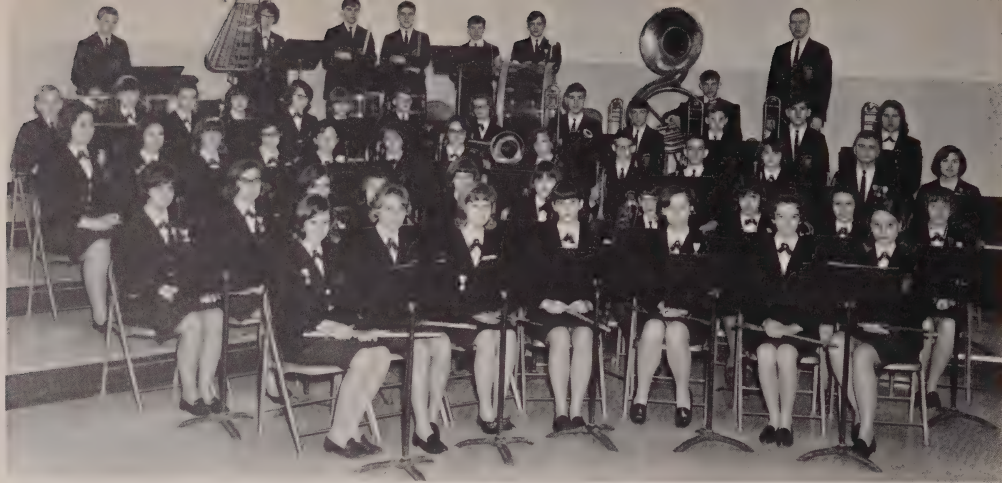

Art students Ronnie Painter, Sam Good, and Keith Hensley paint a sign for the future Grove Hill Community Center. Art students did much work for the school community during the year.

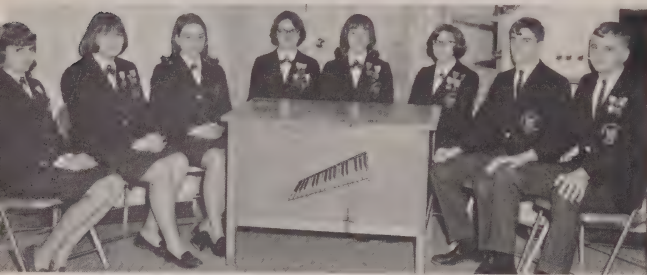

Philip Vaughn, leading PCHS artist, finishes an eagle for the Future Farmers insignia. The pictures behind him are all his work.

Holly Hensley does her first oil color after spending the year with tempera, sketching, and water color. She donated this picture of The Christ to the school.

Of all the organizations at Page County High School, few rival the band in expressing the school's spirit. Under the direction of Mr. Robert Brubaker, the band entertains at football games, marches in parades, and presents several concerts. The majorettes, leading the Marching Band, add the right amount of color and flash. Another section of this organization, the "pep" band, provides plenty of spirit for the pep rallies.

The trombone section works with the new Strobotuner which is an electronic instrument giving an accurate visual indication of the frequency of a sound. The Strobotuner shows the operator visually whether or not the tone under investigation is in tune. It is only necessary for the player or vocalist to alter a tone to produce a stationary disc pattern in the Strobotuner to show that he is in tune.

The Page County High School Marching Band is made up of members of the Concert Band.

BAND MAJORETTES-Janet Kite; Kay McDaniel; Barbara McDaniel, Head Majorette; and Karen Bodell, Drum Majorette.

The Concert Band, striving to teach a greater appreciation of fine music, performed in the District V Band Festival and Solo-Ensemble Festival. Seven members also participated in the All-District Band.

Led by drum majorette, Karen Bodell, the Marching Band endeavors to teach self-discipline and cooperation through drill procedures and aids band publicity and public relations. Members performed at Band Day at the University of Virginia and attended the Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester.

ment services. It also presents two sacred concerts in Shenandoah and Stanley churches in the spring.

Page County High's governing body, the SCA, is considered to be one of the most important organizations in our school. The Council is made up of a representative elected from each home room; and for the first time this year, all club presidents are included as members.

The SCA has had an active year and carried out many projects, which include a Variety Show, Senior Week, Rat Day, and an Easter assembly. It is also responsible for the student directory, a listing of the name, address, and telephone number of each student. In addition to these activities, it was decided that grace would be said each day before lunch.

The District Meeting held at Turner Ashby was attended by 18 representatives and delegates were in attendance at the state conference at Virginia Beach. Officers, Lois Campbell, Rudy Dean, and Diane Gray, also represented Page County at an honor conference at Huguenot High School.

With their version of the Tonight Show, Ronnie Robertson, Eugene Kiblinger and Butchie Lankford won first prize in the talent show planned by the SCA.

The NHS strives to create an enthusiasm for scholarship and a desire to render service, promotes worthy leadership, and encourages the development of character in students of Page County High School. If a student makes the honor roll five out of six times, he is presented an academic letter or a bar by the club. Any junior or senior who has maintained a "B" average for his first four years of high school and possesses those qualities that the club works to achieve is tapped for membership in the National Honor Society.

FORENSIC CLUB

The Forensic Club strives to develop individual talents in the speech arts and an increased knowledge of current events. This year's activities included the forensic clinic held at Hanley High School, the debate clinic at the University of Virginia, weekly debates, and the presentation of a student forensic assembly.

The club concentrates in three basic areas--debate, public speaking, and prose and poetry. There are two main goals of debate. The first is to develop a student's speaking ability without prepared notes, and the second is to enable him to think clearly in tight situations. The member develops composition work and gains more poise in his speaking ability through public speaking. Oral interpretation is the effective communication of thoughts and feelings of the author to the listener.

PROSE AND POETRY-Bonnie Foltz, Mildred Price, Nancy Santey, Linda Hughes, Judy Lam.

In the prose and poetry section, a student is enabled to increase his personal enjoyment of literature by improving his ability to study and read aloud to others. Bonnie Foltz placed third in poetry in the District Meet.

The objective of the Math-Science Club is to encourage individual investigation in the various fields of science and mathematics. The students learn the basic fundamentals of mathematical and scientific skills, which will serve as valuable stepping stones to higher education or future employment. This organ-

One of the topics under discussion in the Math-Science Club is the effect of smoking on the human body.

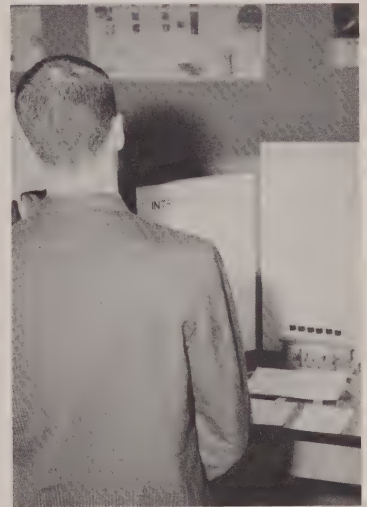

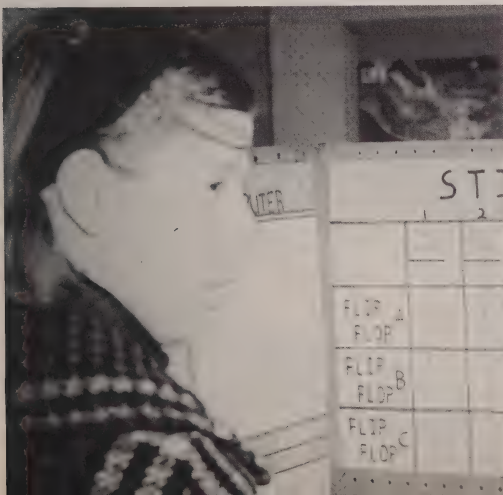

Two members of the club, Peggy Hammer and Virgie Cardin, spent a great deal of time and effort on the construction of the model exhibit.

Page County High School, with a great deal of help from the Math-Science Club, acted as host to the third annual Page County Science Fair. A telescope constructed and displayed by W. L. Rosenberger won the outstanding award.

Exhibits were judged on creative ability, scientific thought, skill, thoroughness, and dramatic value.

The Page County Panthers opened their football season with victories over John Mosby Academy and Montevideo. Although several following games ended in defeat, the Panthers did better toward the end of the season to come from behind and scare the district leading Broadway champs, but Broadway finally won by two points. Buddy Alger and Donnie Knighton both placed on the All-District First Team, and Doug Burner and Lawrence Cabbage earned places on the second-team. We had other outstanding players, but by the end of the season, it could be said that "every player was a good man."

A Panther is tackled by Luray players.

J.V. FOOTBALL TEAM

The Page County J.V.'s compiled an outstanding 5-1-2 record against strong competition. Although outweighed every game, they were never out fought. David Lucas, Greg Wentz and Stanley Price were outstanding all season.

Players await the outcome of the struggle for a rebound between Central cagers and a Panther.

The Panthers were hurt by the probation, but once they got over their indignation, they settled down to make the best of the season. By the time the District Tournament came around, Page County would have made a good run for the top spot. "They played their best!" was the usual expression, and the record speaks for itself. Page County ended the season with thirteen wins to four losses in the district.

Jerry Hoak was leading scorer, followed by Gary Brown. Other outstanding players were Johnny Painter, Ricky Kite, John Philips, and Floyd Cubbage. The only Panther to leave the team because of graduation is Johnny Painter. His calm floorwork will be missed, but some good men will be moving up from the hustling J.V.'s.

Jerry Hoak pumps in two points as fellow players look on anxiously.

Jerry Hoak, scoring thirty out of a possible forty points, was named to the All-District Basketball Team. With a total of 354 points for the regular season, he also tied for the District Leading Scorer title. His average per game was 19.66.

Panthers look on as a player takes his bat at the top of the first inning.

In baseball, the Panthers won no pennants, but they were always in there fighting and ended the season with an overall record of four to six. James Lam and Donnie Knighton were among the top Panther stars with the bat, and Gary Brown led the pitching staff with a three-two record. John Babb and Donnie Knighton also did much service on the mound.

A Panther beats out an infield hit.

VARSITY TRACK TEAM

Ronnie Robertson established a new school record in the shot put with a distance of 48' 3-1/2".

Although the first track meet of the season with Elkton ended in defeat, the Page "Thinclads" refused to let this dampen their spirits. Also the Panthers had a new oval which proved to be a success at the first home track meet of the season. Page County took thirteen out of the possible fourteen first places, and defeated Strasburg with an impressive score of 98 1/2 to 19 1/2. The final meet of the year with John Mosby Academy was a complete victory with Page capturing fourteen out of fourteen first places and completely sweeping nine events.

Two new school records were set this season. In the shot put, Ronnie Robertson established a record of 48' 3-1/2" as compared to the old record of 45' 5-1/2", and James Hammer set a new Page record in the 440 with a time of 53.2 seconds. In addition, this is the third consecutive year that the Page discus throwers have been undefeated.

Panther track stars try out the new Page oval.

Jerry May goes up and over the pole vault.

In the first four team meet of the season, Julian Smith took first place in the discus.

THE SPORTSMANSHIP CODE

The players:

1. They live clean and play hard. They play for the love of the game.
2. They win without boasting and lose without excuses.
3. They respect the officials and accept their decisions without arguments.
4. They never forget that they represent their school.

The Coach:

1. He sets a good example for all his players.
2. He teaches his players to respect the property of other schools.
3. He inspires in his players a desire to do their best, win or lose.
4. He demands the same respect for the officials and other players that his players would show him.

The Cheerleaders:

1. They must be persons of high moral standards and must be able to control their emotions.
2. They must be able to get the spectators to realize the importance of rules.
3. They must know when and when not to cheer.
4. They must respect and receive the same respect from the spectators.

The Spectators:

1. They should remember that they as well as the students represent the school.
2. They should not criticize the coach or the players. All of us are human.
3. They should respect the officials' decisions.
4. They should appreciate a good play, no matter who makes it.

Adopted October 10, 1964, by the Sportsmanship Committee of the S.C.A.

CHEERLEADERS

Through the leadership of the cheerleaders, the spirit and loyalty of the fans is intensified. Keeping in mind their goals of promoting school spirit and providing organized cheering, these girls practice vigorously and contribute much to the success of our Panthers by letting the boys know that they are behind them all the way.

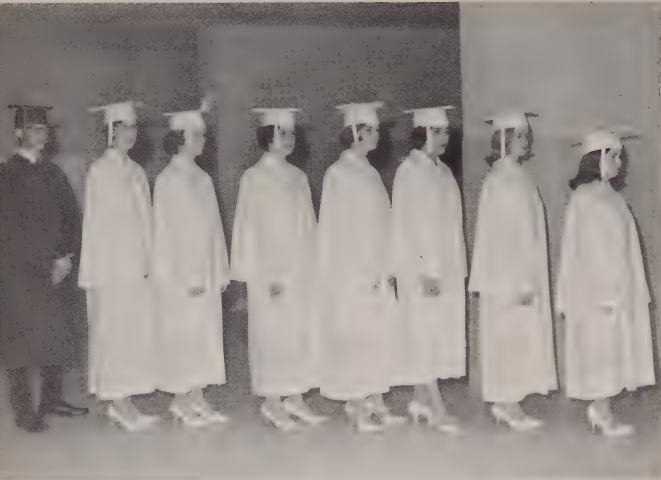

Wholeheartedly supporting the Panthers, the cheerleaders transfer their enthusiasm to the spectators.

Victory!

COMMENCEMENT

JUNE 10, 1966

Honor graduates practice filing into the auditorium.

As the seniors slowly began their last march down the aisles of the auditorium, they realized that five memorable years were coming to a close, and they would soon no longer be students of Page County High School. Five members of The National Honor Society gave the commencement addresses. Leading the program, Peggy Hammer spoke on the preciousness of our freedom, the ease with which it can be lost, and the way we can best protect it. Pat Kite, speaking on the topic "Like Our Forefathers, So Are We", talked about the problems that faced our ancestors and will continue to confront future generations. As Judy Lam began speaking on "The Result of Twelve Years", the seniors realized how much their years in school have meant to them. Education--how it has progressed and how valuable it is in our world, both now and in the future--formed the theme of Phyllis Merica's and Martha Shuler's messages.

The choral class sings "Teach Me, O Lord."

Seniors prepare to begin their march to the auditorium.

After receiving awards and diplomas, 105 graduates marched down the aisles to the "March from Aida", going from Page County High School into the world.

Nellie Brubaker accepts her diploma from Mr. Bodkin.
